TOPICS OF INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN

EDITED BY JULIA CHANDLER MANZ

A DISTINCTIVE MODEL.

There is just enough of decoration and color variety in this dress to give it a charm for every one. The materials are cloth and satin in a deep gun-metal shade. Around the neck is a shaped piece of burnt orange cloth, embroidered in Oriental colors, and sewed on with an edge of coutache.

A narrow collar of black velvet is ornamented with gilt and imitation topaz buttons, and cuffs of the velvet are finished with tabs of the orange cloth. There is a girde of braid, and satin-covered buttons are used as a trimming.

Valuable Information.

Silks have been so fashionable this summer that a hint on their preservation will not come amiss. When they are put away they should not be folded in white paper, for the chloride of lime used in bleaching the paper is apt to spoil the color of the silk.

SOME OF THE ANCIENT CUSTOMS OF CELEBRATING ALL HALLOWTIDE

It is a great pity to let the last night of October slip by without any of the mystic observances by which in old times young people set such store. Most of the Halloween tricks are fairly hoary with age, but they are all the more interesting and amusing for that very reason.

Take, for instance, the ancient method of finding out the future of the husband or wife's name by the peeling of an apple. Not many of the present-day young folks know how to do this, and yet what shouts of laughter, what sly remarks and what rosy blushes it always creates. A Halloween party without apples is almost as much of an anomaly as a plum pudding without plums or a meat pie without any meats, so necessary is this most useful fruit to the proper observance of the evening.

Besides the trick with the peel are there not also the time-honored customs of bobbing for apples, the apple on a stick, and the fateful number of the apple seeds?

Apple Peel Test.

If you wish to put your fate to the test of the augury of the apple peel, pare an apple carefully with a sharp knife, endeavoring to keep the peel in one piece if possible. Then take the long strip of peel, whirl it slowly around the head three times, and throw it over the left shoulder. Leave it undisturbed on the floor until you have deciphered the letter it looks the most like. Sometimes it will make a perfect letter, and then again, you will have to use your imagination a trifle to discover just what it stands for. But whatever the letter may chance to be, with that initial and no other will begin the name of your future matrimonial partner in life.

After you have found out the mystic initial, the proper thing is to eat the apple you have just peeled, taking good care to count the seeds as you do this, for will not the number of seeds form an infallible guide to the state of your affections?

Bobbing for Apples.

Bobbing for apples is a prank that has been popular with Scotch children, and even older lads and lassies for generations. American children have loved it, too, and I have even known grown-ups to extract a good deal of enjoyment from this innocent diversion. As nearly everybody knows, the apples are put in a tub or large dish-pan of water, and the trick is to take them out with the teeth, which is not nearly so easy as it sounds.

Another stunt which affords much amusement but is unfortunately not as much as "bobbing for apples," is to make a cake of flour by packing it loosely in a pan and then pressing into the center a bright dinner fork. The cake of flour is then carefully turned out on a platter and each guest must take a knife and cut a slice. The one whose slice contains the dinner fork is obliged to take it out with his teeth.

The test of the saucers is interesting. Take three saucers, fill one with cereal or flour or any dry food, put water

THREE PLANS FOR HALLOWEEN SUPPERS

Any One of These Menus Will Prove Delightful To-night.

Halloween Supper No. 1.

Raw Oysters, Pluquet Sauce, Browned Chicken, Liver Gravy, Crisp Celery, Baked Sweet Potatoes, Scalloped Corn, Kidney Beans, Water Biscuits, Baked Apples, Pumpkin Pie, Orange Ice in Pumpkin Shells, Sponge Cake, Black Coffee.

Pluquet sauce—One grated clove of garlic, one teaspoonful of oil, five tablespoonfuls of catsup, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a dash of paprika, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, three drops of tabasco sauce, and one scant teaspoonful of salt. Serve very cold over ice.

As a table decoration have a pumpkin fruit basket filled with autumn fruits, red and gold predominating. At each place place a brightly colored autumn leaf, on this a carrot holding an orange-colored candle. Light the candles just before the guests enter. To the guest whose candle burns the longest, the hostess presents the evening's paper cases, pumpkin shape, will be appropriate for serving the ice, or scooped-out orange rinds may be used.

Add long, thin strips of pimento to endive salad just before serving. Make icing for sponge cake as follows: Two cupsful of confectioner's sugar, two or three tablespoonfuls of water, one-half teaspoonful of orange extract or the grated zest of one orange and one-half the yolk of an egg lightly beaten, to give a delicate yellow color. Spread while cake is warm.

Halloween Supper No. 2.

Black Bean Soup in Cups, Jack-o'-Lantern Sandwiches, Fried Oysters, Cabbage Slaw, Rye Bread with Anise Seed, Nut and Celery Salad in Apple Shells, Individual Pumpkin Pies, Roasted Chestnuts, Mulled Cider.

Roasted chestnuts—Cut a slit in the shell of each chestnut, place in the corn popper, and shake over the fire; when they burst remove the shells and skin them; toss in hot butter in the frying pan, sprinkle with salt and serve hot.

Mulled cider—Heat one quart of cider with six cloves, twelve allspice, a stick of cinnamon broken in bits, and one-quarter nutmeg broken in pieces. If the cider is too tart, add sugar; if too sweet, add lemon juice.

Halloween Supper No. 3.

Grape Juice Cocktail, Tongue Mayonnaise, Stuffed Olives, Hot Rolls, Buttered, Lettuce Sandwiches, Apple Sherbert, Nut Cakes, Small Coffee.

Fortune-telling Nuts.

Fortune-telling nuts are prepared by halving the shells, extracting nut meats, and filling the cavities with tightly rolled slips of paper, on which are written such words as "Love," "Success," "Wealth," "Journey," "Brave," "Glue," "The shells together. Mix these nuts with whole nuts in a bowl and pass to the guests. They create a merry diversion.

The New Hats.

The new flat hats are the fashion of the moment, and are as large as ever. Indeed, we seem to have said farewell indefinitely to the average sized hat, as our headgear either fits quite close to the head or is of a great width. To be thoroughly inconsistent and in keeping with the reputation of her sex, woman has decreed that tall hats are to be our immediate wear as velvet ones have been during the summer.

Helpful Hint.

If a strong brine of salt and water is thrown over the coals less soot will collect in the flues and chimneys. The fire, too, will burn clear and bright.

FOR WITCHES NIGHT

Try Them at Your Halloween Party To-night.

The test of the ring and the glass does not seem to be as widely known as it deserves, for it is very pretty and sentimentally mysterious. For this you will require a wedding ring and a glass half full of water. The girl—this can only be true, for a girl—who wishes to consult the fates pulls a hair from her head and ties one end of it carefully to the wedding ring. Then grasping the other end of the hair between finger and thumb she holds it at arm's length so that the ring hangs suspended in the center of the glass, at least an inch above the water. She must stand thus with her arm stretched out until the ring begins to swing against the side of the glass. Ting, "One year before the wedding takes," Ting, ting, "No it is going to be true." Perhaps the prevailing little circle of gold seems possessed to ring out a long tale of years of weary waiting or worse still perhaps it absolutely refuses to ring at all.

Frail little boats are made of paper and each one named for some favored friend or sister. They are then blown hither and thither on the surface of a big bowl of water and the one that floats the longest will be the successful lover, or letters are cut from the headlines in a newspaper and thrown from the water and they will form mystic letters and sentences that can be construed according to the imagination of the fortune teller.

NOVEL LANTERNS FOR HALLOWEEN PARTY

Have you seen the new and very novel black paper lanterns which the old witch has designed for Halloween, this year?

One especially funny one is on long in shape, showing in yellow paper the cut-out face of Jack in the box with his legs sticking out.

Another one shows the old witch sweeping the cobwebs off the sky, and

A rather novel color combination was effectively worked out in this dress. The lace, which resembles cluny, but is of a deep ecru color, is exactly matched by the voile, which forms the dress. The darker portions are of amethyst satin meshing, matched by the glass buttons at the side.

A black velvet bow accentuates the contrasting dark and light.

THE YOUNG HOUSEWIFE

Tea or coffee grounds should never be allowed to go down the sink pipe, as these are very apt to stop up the drain-age.

To scatter dried tea leaves over the carpet while sweeping is an old-fashioned but good way to brighten a faded carpet.

Colored clothes, after laundering, should be hung on the line wrong side out, as in this way there is less danger of their becoming faded.

Every dress should be hung on its own coat hanger, if possible. Where two or three waists or gowns must be placed on the same hanger, place a sheet of tissue paper or an old towel between each one.

ABOUT FILET WORK.

Many women who do handsome filet work are much distressed to find that their squares and strips will pucker and warp at the first laundering. This is because filet not only shrinks badly but does not shrink the same as the linen or other material in which it is inserted.

Run no risks. Before making up any filet pieces shrink them by pouring boiling water over them several times.

A lump of sugar dropped into a teapot constantly in use prevents any mustiness.

the closing is affected.

The skirt may have the regulation of slightly high waist line, both of which will be worn this winter, and is an excellent design for the comfortable storm skirt.

Covert, a heavy storm serge, armure, or the very smart diagonal weaves would be suitable for a skirt of this sort and would make up admirably.
